- Between 6 and 11 October 1947, a Soviet commission made a survey of registrations of former German army, navy and air force personnel in Halle. It is said that when news of this survey reached Weissenfels, the shoe factories were forced to halt operations because many of their workers fled.
- Since the beginning of October, all men and women now working or formerly employed in the chemical industry or chemical research institutes have been ordered to register with their labor offices. This registration, covering the entire Russian Zone, was to be completed by 15 October.
